

Consistent Parenting

The Consistent Parenting series helps you develop a parenting plan and teaches you how to stick with your plan.

“Oh...all right...” Parents hate it when they give in to their children. Children seem to delight in catching their parents when they’re tired and distracted.

Parents ask, “Are we doing the right things?” “Is this a character flaw or a stage my child will grow out of?” “Am I the only parent with all these challenges?”

Many of the challenges parents face, can be lessened by clearly identifying your expectations and responses ahead of time. Millie leads you through the process of developing your parenting plan and goals.

How does this impact passing on your Christian values to your children? God has ordained the family as basic unit of order in our society. This is where children learn respect. If a family has little order, and the parents don’t expect to be obeyed, the children won’t believe God’s rules, and will see no reason to obey Him either.

The Bible says, “...Don’t grow weary in well-doing” (Galatians 6:9.) Most parents have good intentions, but get worn down. Millie McNabb shows you the basics to continue the good work of parenting. You will learn:

- To feel more confident in your parenting
- To follow the right track when life tries to derail you
- To know what to do when your routine gets off-course

The Consistent Parenting Seminar Series is available as a weekend seminar, teleseminars or as separate 90-minute breakout sessions:

- Great Expectations: You will find it easier to enforce the rules when you know what the rules are.
- Principle or Preference: You can relax when you teach your children know how to make choices.
- Intentional or Misunderstanding: You can have relief from always saying, “NO!”
- Love and Authority: You can be in charge of your children and show them love at the same time.
- An Ounce of Prevention: You can eliminate many of the surprises of parenting.
